

Issei Komuro, MD, PhD

Dr. Issei Komuro graduated from the University of Tokyo in 1982. He is now vice president of the International University of Health and Welfare, project professor and Emeritus Professor of the University of Tokyo, Tokyo, Japan. He has made many world-class achievements in cardiology over the past 35 years, including molecular mechanisms of cardiac hypertrophy formation, cardiac development, and the development of heart failure. Dr. Komuro became professor and chairman, of the Department of Cardiovascular Medicine at Chiba University, Osaka University, and the University of Tokyo. He has mentored over 300 graduate students and published over 1300 original papers in peer-reviewed journals including Nature, Cell, Nature Medicine, Lancet, and Circulation. He received many awards including ACC/Merck fellowship award, the Outstanding Investigator Prize, President's Distinguished Lecture Award, Research Achievement Award from ISHR, and Gold Medal from ESC. He was elected as an ISHR, AHA, ESC, APSC, and JCS Fellow.