

Dr. Shirakawa received his PhD in Medical Research Internal Medicine in 2017 and served as a Special Research Fellow of the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science from 2019 to 2021. Since 2023, he joined Keio University School of Medicine as an assistant professor and concentrated his research on cardio-immunology , where his passion lies in developing innovative therapeutic approaches. He has received several academic awards as the first author including the Young Investigators Award (Japanese Circulation Society, 2014), and the Young Investigators Award (Japanese Society of Echocardiography, 2017).